PIERRE FAVRESSE

Born in 1979 Pierre Favresse studied cabinet making at Boule Art School followed by specialising in design at Les Arts Decoratifs in Paris. Having gained experience from his five years collaborating with Mathieu Lehaneur in the post of designer and agency director, he founded his own studio in 2010. Since 2011 he has been the creative director at Habitat.

« The creations of the studio are characterised by the high level of care that is given to the requirements and the elegance of the forms and objects. They possess emotion and sensitivity through experimentation, and the link between artisanal work and up to date technology. Design is becoming a form of expression to respond to questions of usage, while incorporating creative momentum provided by social and environmental challenges. »

TIDELIGHT...
ACCORDING TO ITS DESIGNER :

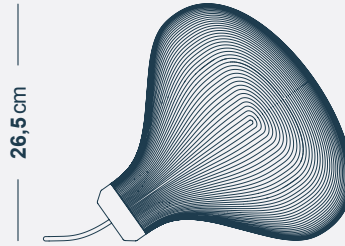

« This table lamp plays with diffraction, with a design that draws its inspiration from the techniques and codes used in the car industry. Through its texture and shape, TIDELIGHT increases light diffusion. »

Hand blown in a mould, TIDELIGHT is a lamp made in series in which each and every lamp is unique. The textured glass, which is reminiscent of car industry codes, swathes the light-bulb creating a diffused and warm light. The thick glass allows this lamp to be positioned on either the floor or on furniture, the stability being maintained by the square cork base.
